Tabi Gazele's hypnotic melodies, thought-provoking lyrics and captivating presence are set to see her make her mark globally.

SINGER SONGWRITER

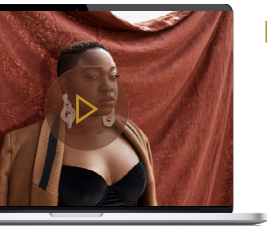

Nigerian-Australian Tabi Gazele has taken leaps and bounds in her musical journey, including hitting over 2 million combined streams through collaborations with Bliss N Eso, Lee Fields and Rufus Du Sol, before she relocated to the UK to pursue her musical dreams. Tabi Gazele's UK journey had a momentous start with her show-stopping Grand Final placement on BBC1's All Together Now before taking time to build at a grassroots level through performing intimate shows all over the UK and working closely with the iconic Sofar Sounds.

Drawing comparisons to powerhouse singers such as Emeli Sande, Tabi's original pop-soul tracks, "Hurricane" and most recently, "Something To Learn" both debuted on BBC Music Introducing Berkshire and she has performed numerous times on the Introducing Live stage. From the continuous and growing support she has received, it is clear that Tabi Gazele's hypnotic melodies, thought-provoking lyrics and captivating presence are set to see her make her mark globally.
